SEE A NEW LINE OF COLORFUL TABLES FOR SPRING

The Palais table by 22 22 Edition Design comes in eight colors.

To complement spring's plentiful pastel hues, a new outdoor table range from the Parisian company 22 22 Edition Design offers a colorful, modernist meeting point for terraces and gardens alike. Made in France from laser-cut steel, then coated with epoxy paint and a durable protective layer, the 22 22 Palais table line was introduced at Maison & Objet in Paris this past January and is now for sale in eight shades, ranging from Yves Klein blue to baby pink.

The spherical base consists of a series of ribbonlike metal strips forming a symmetrical, hollow tube that meets the solid, round table top, which features a decorative cutout pattern around the perimeter. The table is the latest addition to the 22 22 Palais collection, which includes a chair, an armchair, and a three-seat bench, all intended for outdoor use but equally at home indoors.

"The inspiration for this collection came to me as I was observing a sculpture-object made of distorting mirrors that reflected off one another during the Dynamo exhibition in Paris in June 2013," says designer Jean-Claude Cardiet, cofounder of 22 22 Edition Design. "I immediately realized that this 90-degree pattern could be the starting point of an outdoor furniture collection that is both flexible and rigid, antique yet contemporary, graphic and iconic."

In the U.S., the Palais collection is available directly through 22 22 Edition Design's website, or via ProMod LLC, for $1,935; 2222editiondesign.com
